The Learning Tree, Inc. Announces “Growing Independence Behavioral Services”

The Learning Tree, Inc. announces a new opportunity to access applied behavior analysis services (ABA) in a clinic setting. Growing Independence Behavioral Services will now be available in Anniston, Birmingham, Montgomery, and Mobile locations.

ABA therapy will be available for preschool and school-age children with a diagnosis of autism spectrum disorder (ASD). ABA is a scientifically based process for teaching and changing behavior, proven effective for children with autism. Licensed Behavior Analysts and Registered Behavior Therapists will conduct assessments and manage all aspects of behavioral programming. Assistance with private insurance billing is also available. To inquire about Growing Independence Behavioral Services, contact Dr. Matthew Busick, mabusick@learning-tree.org or (205) 718-9519.

About The Learning Tree, Inc.

The Learning Tree is a nonprofit organization founded in 1983 in Mobile, Alabama, to provide educational and residential services for children and adolescents with developmental disabilities, including autism. From its unassuming beginnings, The Learning Tree, Inc. has grown into the significant role of serving some of the most severely impacted children with disabilities in Alabama. Today, more than 600 children and adolescents from across the state are served each year.
